Senators Study New Bill. Senators generally were studying today the new tariff bill as reported yesterday to the Senate in preparation for the long days of controversy that are ahead on the Senate floor. Several amendments to rates in the bill already have been offered from the republican side, while democratic leaders are preparing to make a general assault on the measure as well as separate attacks on many of the rates. Powers of President. The Senate committee, in redrafting the bill in accordance with the foreign valuation principle, made provision for a flexible tariff, following out a suggestion of President Harding. The President would be authorized, under the bill: "To modify tariff rates either up ward or downward within prescribed limits (50 per cent) and in accordance with definite rules laid down by Congress, so that rates may at all times conform to existing conditions. "To change the basis for the assess-"To change the basis for the assessment of ad valorem duties on selected items from the foreign value to the value of the domestic article in the American market when the foreign value is not a certain basis for the assessment of duties on such items.

which discriminates against our over-seas commerce. These additional duties are limited to the amount of the discrimination, but if the dis-crimination is maintained, the im-portation of merchandise may be prohibited."

The committee report declares that provisions are undoubtedly constitu-tional and that they would contribute to tariff stability to tariff stability.

Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, chairman of the republican argricultural tariff bloc, yesterday afternoon introduced three amendments to raise rates on minor items. His amendments proposed to raise the rate on peanuts to 3 cents on unshelled, and 4 cents on shelled. He also proposed 2 cents a pound on rice and rice products and 1½ cents on soya beans. Rates on all are much lower in the bill.

Representative Moore The "ominous incident" when thirty officials at the bureau of engraving and printing were summarily dis-missed by a drastic order from President Harding threatens to "break down the civil service system" and place the business of the government where it once was, in the hands of reckless and unscrupulous spoilsmen," Representative R. Walton Moore of Virginia declared during a long speech in the House today.

He reviewed the civil service legislation, and accused President Harding of breaking away from the substantial policy of McKinley and Roosevelt, Taft and Wilson.

Representative Moore referred to statements that the action of the President traces back to what was done by the director when the bureau force was reduced about 600 last July. He said he is informed that what the director then did had authority in advance of the assistant secretary of the Treasury, Elliott Wadsworth, and had the subsequent approval of a committee headed by the controller of the currency.

It has been taken for granted that the increased appropriation necessary for adequate and safe building inspection would be agreed to without any question, especially as Chairman Madden of the House appropriations committee has repeatedly and emphatically declared that this office must have all the inspectors it needs. It develops, however, that not only has no agreement been reached but there seems to be a reluctance on the part of some of the conferees to allow this increase.

Chairman Madden's Plan.

Chairman Madden has shown his sincerity in putting through a deficiency appropriation of $3,000 for such building inspection service during the rest of the present fiscal year. On the same basis an annual appropriation of $12,000 additional to the amount in the appropriation bill for 1922 would be required.

Col. Keller, however, has worked out a plan for dividing the city into five building inspection zones, with a $2,000-a-year inspector in charge of each zone. To carry this out he has asked for four additional inspectors at $2,000-he already has one at that salary—and a clerk at $1,100, making Chairman Madden's Plan. salary—and a clerk at $1,100, making a total increase for the next fiscal year of $9,100.

Request Believed Ample. The subcommittees on appropria-tions for the District in both the House and Senate have been assured that this will give adequate and safe building inspection in the District— at an increase of less than $10,000. There is every assurance that if such an item is reported to the House and Senate from the conference committee it will pass by a practically unani

The erstwhile leader of the whisker procession, declared today he was the unwilling victim of circumstances over which he had no control. Torn between his hirsute duty to the club and the necessity of maintaining diplomatic relations with friend wife, he yielded to that home influence which has directed many another man's destiny. Goaded to desperation by domestic taunts, he sought solace and relief in the barber's chair. But this excuse did not palliate his offense in the eyes of the members of the Whiskers Club. A petition was placed in circulation and it culminated last night in an official ousting of Larash at a public meeting of the club.

The former president's gavel was turned over to City Manager Clyde L. Seavey, a loyal member of the club, who sports an ambitious set of Lord Chester Arthurs. Larash's whiskers, once the pride of the club, were brought forward in a miniature comin draped in black, as-proof of his desertion.
